
THE DUBLIN STANDARD

VOL. 19, NO.190

01 NOVEMBER 1996

HALLOWEEN TRAGEDY LOCAL WOMAN FOUND DEAD

The quaint Wicklow village of Kilbride is in shock today after the body of Sinead Byrne, 34, was discovered in the early hours of this morning. She had last been seen attending the annual Kilbride Halloween Bonfire on Thursday evening, where she chatted with several townsfolk.

Mrs. Byrne, a widow who lived by herself, was found lying face down in her front room by a neighbour returning some borrowed sugar, who immediately phoned in the emergency services.

A Garda spokesperson had the following to say, "The investigation is at a very early stage but as of now we are treating the death as suspicious. We would appeal to anyone who saw or spoke to Mrs. Byrne on Halloween night or saw or heard anything suspicious to come forward".

No arrests have been made at this time.

DUBLIN STANDARD: UNCOVERING THE
STORIES THAT NEED TO BE HEARD

Local Business Owner Makes Theft Accusations

Kilbride Shopkeeper, Tony Greene has publicly accused several locals of pilfering goods from his shop over the last number of months. Although no legal action has been taken, Mr. Greene plans to install a new CCTV camera to try and stop suspects in the act. While some residents defend Greene's decisions others feel that...
